Mercury Toastmasters* offer a special public speaking workshop for interested faculty and staff members of the TU Berlin:

PRESENTING – YOU! - Competence and Confidence in Public Speaking

This workshop offers practical tips, tools and techniques for speaking to your audience successfully. You'll be coached by experienced professionals, who will assess your current skills and guide you towards becoming a more confident and competent speaker and presenter. The content focuses on 3 main areas:

I. Where are you now? Where can you go?
- identifying your individual strengths and areas for improvement
- tapping into your true potential

II. Speaking Essentials for More Impact
- body language (eye contact, gestures, facial expressions etc.)
- movement and positioning (make friends with the space)
- use of voice (transport your message more effectively)
- connecting with your audience (developing rapport with listeners)
- using words and pictures (creating verbal images - using visual aids - if requested)
- making your message meaningful

III. Taming the Beast - Nervousness
- exploring its causes
- transforming nervousness into positive performance

Designed for all skills and levels. Minimum number of participants: 8 / Maximum: 12 (14)

What would it be like to present with calmness and confidence? Find out in a safe and supportive environment!

The workshop will be led by three longstanding and experienced members of the club who are not only outstanding speakers, having won many contests on every level, but who also have successfully taught and coached in and outside the Toastmasters’ environment:

Wendy Wallace Husser, Mike Hurst and Renko Pauwels.

* Toastmasters is a non-profit organization established in 1924 with now over 352,000 members all over the world, dedicated to providing people with the opportunity and environment to develop their public speaking skills.
